COAL IN OGDEN AND OTHER CITIES.

There is uneasiness over the coal supply, but the railroad officials continue to offer assurance that there is no danger of a famine in fuel, as heavy trains of coal are arriving daily for distribution to Utah points, and Ogden is receiving its share of the shipments.

If local consumers, fearing a shortage of coal, rush to the yards with orders beyond their immediate needs, the threatened scarcity will become a reality. The hope of the coal dealers is that the people during the next few days, will order only as their urgent wants demand, for within ten days, with moderating weather, the coal supply will equal the demand and, perhaps, afford a reserve.

There is some apprehension that, during the holidays, the foreign miners will decide to prolong their Christmas festivities and that, as a consequence, camps like Rock Springs, heavy producers, will fail to yield their usual amount of coal, thus complicating the situation by making it impossible for the railroads, when ready to move the tonnage, to obtain loaded cars.

The very cold weather in Wyoming has retarded the movement of coal. At Green River the mercury has been 32 below zero. During such frigid weather, engines lose much of their efficiency and, as a result, traffic is seriously interrupted.

SALT LAKE HAS A CRAMP.

The Salt Lake mining market is a bottomless pit. Stocks are going down, and still down, until speculators say there is no bottom to prices. As a result, half of the speculating public, dabbling in mining stocks, is possessed of a feeling of ennui. There is an impenetrable pall of gloom over the stock exchange. The Tintic stocks have helped to "break" many a venturesome man, and have left a trail of regrets throughout the state.

With stocks low and heavy disbursements being made for building purposes, Salt Lake banks have shut down on loans and money in that city is commanding a big rate of interest. Fortunately, none of these cramping effects have been felt in Ogden.

After the holidays Salt Lake will recover its financial equilibrium, without doubt, but at present there is considerable writhing.

THE CHILDREN ARE NOT FORGOTTEN.

The Christmas spirit is abroad. Early this morning the Standard received a call from a generous woman who asked for the name of the little girl who had her hands and feet frozen in her home on the Canyon Road.

"I desire to send the child Christmas cheer," said the lady. The address was given and on Christmas eve Santa Claus will knock at the door where bleak winds have long been howling.

The Martha Society has prepared one hundred boxes for little ones who have been searched out by the good, soul-blessed ladies of that society. Those boxes will keep old St. Nick busy, and we do not attempt to say who will receive the greater blessing, those who give or those who receive.

Now, when Santa Claus has performed his mission of love and kindness and has departed with his sleigh and reindeers, who will take his place? After the holidays, shall we forget there are helpless children, worried mothers, invalid fathers?

While the better side of life is before us, let us resolve to help those who are worthy of our assistance; let us help them even after the holly has fallen from our decorations.

OUTLOOK IS ENCOURAGING.

The outlook for 1910 is distinctly encouraging, is Henry Clew's optimistic view. The Christmas trade throughout the United States far surpasses all records and the year is ending with great industrial and mercantile activity. In his weekly letter, Clew says:

"As the year draws to a close there is an improved undertone in financial circles. Uneasiness is gradually disappearing, and a more hopeful feeling prevails.

"President Taft is shortly to issue two messages, one dealing with the railroads and another with large corporations. Nothing is yet known concerning the President's purposes on these subjects, but his well-known views, which have been repeatedly expressed in the past, afford assurance that no radical proposals will be offered. It is not likely that the railroads will object to any reasonable regulation, nor are the corporations likely to any longer resist a rational application of the anti-monopoly law.

"The business outlook is somewhat unsettled by prospects of labor agitation. There are signs of unrest, not only among railroad employees, but in the steel and several other industries. In many cases the present high cost of living is the basis for increased demands, but a determination to secure as large returns as possible is probably an equal motive for these demands. The general trend of values of commodities is upwards, and the necessary process of adjustment to the higher cost of doing business and living is perplexing and uncomfortable. Food and clothing are now very high, with little prospect of declining until the next harvest brings relief, as it probably will. The present high prices for cotton, grain and other products should induce very large crops during 1910, assuming that no disasters interfere. The acreage of winter wheat already shows a large increase, and every acre capable of growing cotton will be brought into requisition next spring. Of corn also the acreage in 1910 is sure to be heavy; and the meat supply must soon increase. Farmers both West and South are now enjoying prosperity to a degree which they never anticipated, and the effect of this is already being felt in an excellent demand for all classes of merchandise.

The promise of continued prosperity is a pleasing message to every home. And best of all, this prosperity is reaching down to the farmer and through the farmer to the great body of the people. Of course, prices of all kinds of goods are high, but while there is work for all, there can be no serious complaint made against the cost of living. When the people are employed, and through that employment, are made greater consumers, there, of necessity, must be a higher range of prices than when the land is filled with unemployed. Those who most feel the effect of the increased cost of living through dwindling pocket books are people with fixed incomes.

The indications are that 1910 will be one of the banner prosperity years of this country.

ment has permitted the postmaster to employ seven extra clerks and three extra carriers for the holiday season. It is with considerable pride that Mr. Shurtliff points to the willing and efficient work done by the office force in handling the immense amount of mail matter.

BLACKBERRY BRANDY IS NOT RECOGNIZED BY LAW

There is no such thing as "blackberry brandy" or "apricot brandy" recognized by the law of the land or the law of the state. According to these mandates, both drinks should be labeled "cordial" or "flavor." This development in the local liquor traffic has all come about because the food commissioner and his assistants saw in the saloon windows bottles gaudily labeled as "blackberry brandy," and "apricot brandy" for sale and consumption in the coming festive season. Now, the officials knew this was against the law, and upon an investigation being instituted ed it was found that many whole sale and retail dealers were carrying on this practice. It is not thought that there is really any evil intent in the action of the dealers, but the authorities are to make a thorough investigation, and liquor dealers and drug stores are asked to cooperate with the inspectors, so that the food department can remedy and regulate the erratic condition.

PHOSPHATE LANDS ARE AGAIN OPEN TO ENTRY

The phosphate lands lying in the northeastern part of the state, which were withdrawn from entry in December, 1908, have been restored to the public domain. For many months there have been inquiries regarding the entry of these lands, so that the communication received from the secretary of the interior Thursday sets things at rest.

The lands affected are in Summit, Uintah, Grand, Emery, Carbon, Wasatch and other counties. The lands withdrawn include some valuable agricultural tracts, which would lead to a speedy development of that section of the state.

The lands open for entry are all of the following townships: Township 8 north, range 4 east; township 8 north, range 6 east; township 9 north, range 4 east; township 9 north, range 6 east; township 9 north, range 8 east; township 10 north, range 4 east; township 10 north, range 6 east; township 10 north, range 8 east; township 11 north, range 4 east; township 11 north, range 6 east; township 11 north, range 8 east; township 12 north, range 4 east; township 12 north, range 6 east; township 12 north, range 8 east; township 13 north, range 4 east; township 13 north, range 6 east; township 13 north, range 8 east; township 14 north, range 4 east; township 14 north, range 6 east.

OGDEN BOY WINS GREAT HONORS AT HARVARD

The following is a Boston dispatch telling of the success at Harvard of Wm. A. Perkins, son of Mrs. Dr. Perkins of Ogden:

William A. Perkins, '12 of Ogden, and Charles Gordon Douglass, '12 of Salt Lake, were among the Harvard undergraduates who were publicly honored last night in Sanders' theater, Cambridge, by President Lowell of the university. Both Mr. Douglass and Mr. Perkins were made Harvard and Yale scholars in recognition of their high academic standing of last year. The scholarships are without stipend. They are conferred as a high distinction, and are not given on application.

POSTOFFICE IS A BUSY PLACE

The busy season is on at the Ogden postoffice. The employees are virtually buried in business, and would have some trouble in extricating themselves were it not for the splendid working facilities with which they are equipped. Postmaster Shurtliff stated that never before in the history of the office, according to records, has there been as much mail matter to handle at this time of the year as now.

The holiday rush is something remarkable, and the registry and money order departments are working to the full capacity. Were it not that the service is being conducted in the new and commodious federal building, with all the appliances that go to make a modern postoffice, it is questionable whether the volume of business could be properly attended to. The general public is appreciative of the splendid work that is being done at this postoffice.

Postmaster Shurtliff states that the volume of business in the office today exceeds that of previous years, at this time of the season, fully 15 per cent. It has been so great that the govern-
